

New York Transit Museum Talks

Times Square Mural (2002) © Estate of Roy Lichtenstein, Times Square – 42nd Street Station

25 Years of MTA Arts for Transit: Revisiting our Roots

Since 1985, MTA Arts for Transit has commissioned artwork to enhance and improve the rider experience. In celebration of the program's 25th anniversary, discover the story behind this influential program. Public art expert and curator Jennifer McGregor will serve as moderator in a lively discussion that reflects upon the current state of public art in the city and the role of the Arts for Transit program. Panelists: Tracy Fitzpatrick, curator, Neuberger Museum of Art and assistant professor, art history, Purchase College, SUNY; Tom Finkelppearl, executive director, Queens Museum of Art; and Dr. Harriet Senie, co-founder of the organization Public Art.

New York Transit Museum

Corner of Boerum Place and Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn Heights

Tuesday October 5, 2010 6:30 PM

Limited Space. Call 718-694-1794 to register.

For more info: mta.info/art click on 25 Years

FREE

The New York Transit Museum in Brooklyn Heights is wheelchair accessible. The wheelchair lift is currently under construction. Please call ahead if you require assistance (718 694 1873).